Helping You Be a Better Writer

So, what have you got to say for yourself?

I can help you say it better.

← You're writing the next Great American Novel and need someone to help massage it into shape. And to check your grammar. →

← You have Brilliant Ideas that will Change the Internet and need to be sure typos don't make you look like an amateur. Before you hit the publish button. →

← You've got something to say and need help using your words. Without being lectured to by your 5th grade English teacher. →

I don't have time to read your website. So, just call me. Or email. Whichever.

It's not just your Manuscript. It's your Reader's Bliss.

(AUTHOR PAGE)

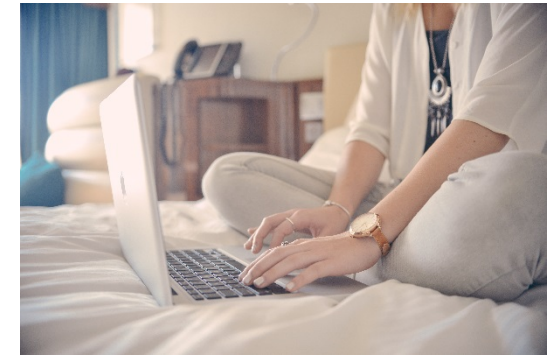

You have mastered your story. Developed deep, rich, compelling characters. Created the perfect setting. Crafted your plot to perfection.

You've written. And rewritten. And edited. And proofread. And rewritten. And re-edited. And re-proofread. And had your mom, your best friend, and your cat read it.

It's perfect!

Now what? Etc.....

(CONTACT PAGE)

You may not be sure exactly what kind of help you need with your document, and that's fine. The best way to figure that out is for me to take a look so we can talk about it. You can email your document as a Word or Adobe file to MoReadsYou@Outlook.com and let me know what services you'd like. I won't share your document or your contact information with anyone. Promise. You don't even have to give me your phone number, but a name would be helpful. Or a nickname. Even an alias would do.
